

THE TOCQUEVILLE PROGRAM AT THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME
IS PLEASED TO ANNOUNCE

THE FALL 2017 FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The Tocqueville Fellowship was designed for Notre Dame undergraduates interested in discussing fundamental questions about politics, culture, business, markets, philosophy, and religion. Tocqueville Fellows receive special invitations to meet, network, and dine with guests and scholars visiting Notre Dame. Fellows also work closely with the Program's professors and staff to design and implement the Program's events.

During the 2016-17 academic year, the Tocqueville Fellows:

- Had a private breakfast with Archbishop Charles Chaput of Philadelphia
- Dined with distinguished scholars, authors, Catholic intellectuals, and business leaders
- Engaged the topics of free speech, discrimination, immigration, and more with field experts
- Helped to plan and carry out program events

We seek undergraduates who are eager to participate in the Program's events and who are enthusiastic about sharing their unique perspectives, academic interests, and personal talents with the Program.

The Tocqueville Fellowship is open to all Notre Dame undergraduates.
Applications are due May 8, 2017

To apply for the Tocqueville Fellowship, send a letter (one-two pages) expressing your interest, including ideas for program events, speakers, and topics to:

Professor Vincent Phillip Muñoz,
Tocqueville Associate Professor of Political Science
